"BLACKIE'S" PRINCELY LIFE.

The $40,000 Cat Accepts Luxuries as a Matter of Course.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—All over the world are people who are interested in the welfare of Blackie, the famous cat of this city, which has inherited a $40,000 estate, lives in solitary grandeur in a large two-floor apartment, with 12 rooms to gambol in, and an attendant to care for him alone.

When his mate, Pinky, died a short time ago and Blackie inherited Pinky's share of the $40,000 left to them both by their master, the late Benjamin F. Dilley of this city, the news was published and is still traveling.

Miss Addie Ruch, who is Blackie's attendant, and who receives a life pension from the estate for caring for him, would have to engage several assistants if she put into practice all the suggestions she received in the scores of letters sent to Blackie and to her from all over the world, but she has paid no attention to any of them, and having brought Blackie up since he first opened his eyes, 16 years ago, she feels capable, she says, of doing what is best for him, and of making his life as long as it is possible for a cat to live. Already he is far older than most cats, and he seems to realize his unique position as a cat of inherited wealth, for he is stately and dignified, he does not lavish caresses upon anyone, not even his devoted attendant, Miss Ruch. Truth to tell, Blackie, as if he does not find comfort in riches, is a rather morose animal, and takes life far too seriously. Perhaps if he had to hustle for his meals like many cats who are heard at night singing their paeans of satisfaction, he might be happier.

"Blackie," the $40,000 Cat.

Blackie sits up at table, has shrimps, Italian chestnuts and other dainties to eat, has fur-lined baskets in which to repose, and many cozy couches and soft chairs upon which to curl.

Imagine his scorn when a letter came from a western woman saying that what Blackie needed was a couple of kittens to play with—kittens which would romp up and down the room, pull his whiskers, pursue his tail, bite his ears and claw his nose. She even offered to let the kittens, and guaranteed that they would give him the time of his life.

"Think of the curl of his nose when came a letter from a New York woman who, preparing to go abroad with her husband for some months, wrote offering to send her cat to keep Blackie company while she was away, and suggesting that, as her cat was a well-bred and highly-cultivated animal, Blackie would be pleased. Such presumption!

MAYOR ELECT OF PHILADELPHIA.
J. E. Reyburn Has Been a Member of Five Congresses.

JOHN E. REYBURN.
(Newly Elected Mayor of Philadelphia.)

In New Carlisle, O., February 7, 1845, was educated by private tutor and at Saunders institute, West Philadelphia, and studied law and was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia in 1870. He was a member of the house of representatives of Pennsylvania in 1871, 1874, 1875 and 1876; was elected a member of the senate of Pennsylvania for a term of four years in 1876 and re-elected in 1880; was elected president pro tem for the session of 1883; was re-elected senator in 1884 and again elected in 1886. He was elected to congress in 1890 and was re-elected to the five succeeding congresses.

SAVINGS OF THE SOLDIERS.

Paymaster's Department Has $2,911,737 of the Regulars' Money.

The American soldier is not highly paid, yet he is a thrifty chap. Last year 54,260 enlisted men saved and deposited with the paymaster's department $1,495,228. This is a respectable sum and represents about 12 per cent of the total pay of all the enlisted men for that period. Had every enlisted man made a deposit the average saving for the year would have been $27.50, but that is the least interesting feature of the system.

The figures show that the soldier can deposit, under the law of 1872, only sums of $5 and over. As the pay is small, the total deposits for the year show that the saving habit is continuous with many enlisted men.

These deposits bear interest at the rate of four per cent a year, but they can not be withdrawn until the soldier receives his discharge. Last year there was repaid to soldiers the sum of $1,168,236; interest was also paid to the amount of $70,112. The number of men discharged is not given, but the amount repaid shows that their average saving must have been considerable.

Since the enacting of the law of 1872 the total deposits have amounted to $27,798,553 and discharged soldiers have received $1,582,993 in interest on deposits withdrawn. There remains on deposit with the paymaster general the sum of $2,911,737.

Defends Walter's Calling.
"Why do the young men of America sneer at the waiter's calling?" said the quiet man in the black swallowtail coat. "A waiter can travel all over the world, become a superb linguist, and earn from $25 to $50 a week, yet the young clerk or salesman with 'eight per' and no future sneers at him."

"When I was a young chap my good mother wanted me to take a job in a department store selling clothes. Not I. I said I'd be a waiter. And my mother was shocked.

"Yet, look at me. As a waiter I travel wherever I wish. One winter I'm in Egypt, the next on the Riviera, the next in Rome. Spring finds me in Paris and thence I leap the channel in time for the London season. In autumn I am back in America again with full pockets.

"I have learned French, German and Italian. I have made friends with many rich, intelligent, amiable people. I have seen the world and earn $2,000 a year. Yet clerks and counter jumpers think they can sneer at me. They had better learn my trade."

Even in Those Days.
Methuselah was approached by an oily-tongued young man who wanted him to sign some bogus testimonials.

"Just say you have been using our 'Fountain of Youth' pills for 700 years," whispered the tempter, "and we will do the rest. It is a fine opportunity for a nice little graft on the side."

But wise old Methuselah shook his head.

"No, young man," he said, slowly, "I have no desire to be alluded to as the 'age of graft.'"

And then the ancient man called his pet piliophthecus and had the oily-tongued young man chased off the cliffs.

Water is a "Nerve Tonic."
"If nervous women would only drink more water they would not be so nervous," remarked a trained nurse the other day.

"Nearly every physician will recommend a woman who is suffering from nervous prostration or nervous exhaustion to drink lots of water between meals, but many women who do not come under the doctor's care would feel better and look better if they would drink, say, a quart of water in the course of a day. Water is a nerve food. It has a distinctly soothing effect when sipped gradually, as one can test for herself."

THE USEFUL 'PHONE

BY NO MEANS USED EXCLUSIVELY FOR BUSINESS.

One Instance Where Wire Conveyed the Voice of Conscience—How Farmer Saved Long Trip After His Cows.

A group of telephone men were telling telephone stories the other day.

"A couple of young lawyers were just shutting up shop to go home one evening not long ago," said one. "It was in a big building, and as it was about nine o'clock, nearly all the windows were dark. One window across the alley, however, was light, and the curtain partly up, and just after they had turned off their own lights the two young fellows saw a man who was dictating in this room reach over and kiss the stenographer. They knew the man's name, that is, they knew the name lettered on his window; so they looked him up in the telephone book and one kept watch at the window, while the other rang him up.

"There were signs of perturbation in the room across the way when the bell rang. When he finally answered the young fellow at the phone said: 'Stop kissing that girl!'

"Who—who are you?" came a quavering, stuttering voice over the 'phone.

"I am the voice of your conscience," said the lawyer, and silently hung up the receiver."

"The marvelous extension of the rural telephone system out west," said a western man, "has introduced an element of variety and interest into the lives of the farmers that can hardly be computed. In some sections of the great farming states the farmer buys their own telephone exchange and then each man runs his own line to his own house and has nothing to pay thereafter, except to keep his own line in order, and his share of the co-operative central office. The women on the farms, when their work is done in the afternoon, love to go to the 'phone and stand listening for hours to everything that buzzes over the wires. It's as good as going to see all their friends. The only trouble is that they get tired standing up and holding the receiver to their ears, and have to sit down and rest once in a while.

"But one day I found an old lady who had solved that problem. She had tied the receiver to the back of her rocking chair, and there she sat comfortably knitting, with the 'phone glued to her ear, listening to all the telephone talk of the county."

"I can tell a better one than that about those farmers' exchanges," said another carelessly. "You know they utilize their barbed wire fences for telephone wires. There was one on a triping Reuben that ran a line from his barn down to the pasture, and a milking time he would call up the cows and tell them to come up to the house."

The other telephone men looked at each other and then turned sadly away.

The Wolf in Switzerland.
Apart from the evidence of its presence in the age of pile dwellings, the earliest reference to the wolf in Switzerland is in a decree of Charlemagne of about the end of the eighth century. From this time to the latter part of the fourteenth century the records are exceedingly scanty, but during the next two centuries they become very common and show the strenuous fight against the marauder which had to be maintained by the inhabitants, and the part which it played in their superstitious ideas. A striking fact is its abundance at the beginning of the seventeenth century which is explained as resulting from the devastation of the Thirty Years War. With the end of that century the period of its greatest abundance closed, and from hence onward it begins gradually to disappear, the last wolf having been killed in Lucerne in 1865, while the western frontier districts continued to suffer from its ravages until quite a recent date. The extermination of the animal has only been made possible by the introduction of modern weapons.—Geographical Journal.

Tortoise Centuries Old.
The oldest inhabitant of the world is a giant tortoise from the Seychelles. It weighs 970 pounds and is known to be over 150 years old. Very probably its age is somewhere about 300 years.

Says Fatigue is a Poison.
A German investigator, Weichardt, has promulgated the theory that fatigue is the direct result of a poison manufactured by the system and developed by hard work, and requiring rest to drive it out.

A prominent lawyer who formerly practiced at the bar of Kansas City tells of a funny incident in a court there during the trial in which a certain young doctor was called as witness.

Counsel for the other side in cross-examining the youthful medico gave utterance to several sarcastic remarks tending to throw doubt upon the ability of so young a man.

One of the questions was: "You are entirely familiar with the symptoms of concussion of the brain?"

"I am."

"Then," continued the cross-examiner, "suppose my learned friend, Mr. Taylor, and myself were to bang our heads together, should we get concussion of the brain?"

"Your learned friend, Mr. Taylor, might," suggested the young physician.—Harper's Weekly.

Bear and Man Both Scared.
A bear invaded the village of Mainville, in Columbia county, Pennsylvania. It came up an alley leading from a creek to the main street and was seen by Martin Gruver. He shouted and ran, and the bear, equally frightened, dashed past Mrs. Anna Gruver, who was coming from her home, ran through her yard and over the property of Boyd Yester, and then across a field and into the woods. A hunting party with lanterns and guns gave chase, but bruin had too great a lead.
